McAloon Takes Republican Nomination for State Representative

Grundy, Will, Iroquois, Livingston, LaSalle, and Kankakee Counties, IL. – The culmination of Super Tuesday proclaims the victors of primary elections around the nation. Among the Illinois winners is David McAloon, who is the Republican Candidate for State Representative for the 75th District. McAloon will be running against Democrat Careen Gordon.

Like much of the constituency, McAloon is a family man, and he knows what it takes to lead a family and earn a living. This is why he has pledged to work for the families and small businesses of the 75th District. He believes in the working class and will work to support them, not hinder them.

McAloon’s conservative views make him a strong candidate for State Representative because he shares the values of those he seeks to represent. He shares their frustrations, and he’s ready to see a change.

And a change is exactly what this state needs. We have to do something different if we want to get a different result. Like the old adage goes, ignorance is nothing more than doing the same thing over and expecting a different result.

David McAloon is the difference this state needs.

McAloon’s positions on the issues can be found by visiting www.friendsformcaloon.org, or by emailing info@friendsformcaloon.org.

“It’s time for a change in Illinois”, states McAloon, “We have seen how special interests and the lack of common sense have made raising a family harder in Illinois, It is time for the citizens of Illinois to take back their government”.
